General about World Café

World Café is the discussion method mainly used for large conferences. Its aim is to engage participants in direct meaningful discussions. Strong side of this approach is linking and discussion of the people who would probably not have met otherwise. World Café offers the opportunity for shared visions, sharing experience and looking for advice on the challenges and problems in implementing change.

The World Café approach reminds the café environment. People sit around the tables, usually by 5-7. Participants undergo the series of discussion 3-4 rounds, each round lasting 20 to 30 minutes. Discussion focuses on one or more specific questions that are personally meaningful to participants. During each discussion round, one of the participants remains at the table as a "host" and the main ideas documenter and the other discussants to move to another table discussion for each round. Diversity of experience and various institutional and ideological perspectives of discussants give an opportunity to analyze the problems from a new angle to discover the more complex and new solutions to emerging problems.

The participations will be divided into three groups. The first group will discuss in English, the second will be a Slovak group for people who don't speak English and for the people in the third group will be provided the alternate program.
